

EQUINE ACUPRESSURE : GOVERNING VESSEL

Acupoint	Location	Uses
GV 1	in the depression between the anus and the ventral aspect of the base of the tail.	diarrhea, blood in stool, constipation, seizures, stimulates first defecation of foal, organ prolapse, stiffness along spine, calms the mind.
GVT	at the very tip of the tail.	shock, over-exertion, anhydrosis, back pain, spine pain, seizures, heat stroke, spasmodic colic, EPM, Wobbler's syndrome, neurological conditions.
Bai Hui	on the dorsal midline at the lumbosacral junction.	colic, irregular heat cycles, lack of heat cycles, hind limb disorders, heatstroke, EPM, Wobbler's syndrome, neurological conditions, improve digestion, hip arthritis., calming.
GV 4	on the dorsal midline in the depression between L2 and L3. Dorsal to BL 23.	one of the most important points for strengthening the body in any weakness or deficiency syndrome, calms the fetus (safe to use on pregnant mares), impotence, abnormal cycling, diarrhea, back pain.
GV14	on the dorsal midline, in the depression between C7 and T1.	relaxes the sinews, fever, cough, sweat, cervical stiffness, skin rash, hives, seizures, back pain, Wobbler's syndrome, weak immune system, calms the Spirit, clears the brain.
GV 20	at the highest point of the poll, just in front of the nuchal crest.	shock, rectal or uterine prolapse, convulsions, sinus problems, headaches, hearing problems, calms the Spirit, calms the mind. depression, improves focus.
GV 26	in a hollow in the horse's upper lip, between the ventral limits of the nostrils.	resuscitation point, releases endorphins (this is the area that twitches are often used), convulsions, brightens the Spirit, brightens the Mind, calms the mind.